

The 11th East Asian Conference on Slavic-Eurasian Studies

Eurasian Space under Great Global Changes:

A Starting Point for Reshaping Regional Order

December 10-11, 2022

East China Normal University, Shanghai, China

The 11th East Asian Conference on Slavic-Eurasian Studies will be held on December 10–11, 2022, and will be co-hosted by the Slavicist Associations of East Asia and the Center for Russian Studies of East China Normal University, a key research base of humanities and social sciences of the Chinese Ministry of Education.

Theme of the Conference

The focuses of this conference include but are not limited to the following issues:

1. Update the interpretation of the concepts of "power and interest structure", "competition and cooperation pattern", "hegemony and sphere of influence" between major countries in and outside the Eurasian continent, explore the changing dynamics in the power game between major countries against the background of the Russia-Ukraine conflict;
2. Review and examine Eurasia's economic development and problems, political progress and challenges, cooperation and threats in security systems, as well as achievements and difficulties in people-to-people exchanges in the twenty-first century;
3. Study the interactive patterns of diverse Eurasian civilizations from the perspective of history and culture, and put forward new thoughts on the concepts of civilization conflict and community of shared future;
4. Discuss the impact and future trends of major conflicts in the Greater Eurasian region, such as the ongoing Russia-Ukraine conflict, on regional and international affairs;
5. Analyze the major changes and main trends of the industrial and technological supply chains and cross-border allocation of resources in Eurasia in the twenty-first century, and investigate the long-term impact of the Russia-Ukraine conflict;
6. Conduct multidisciplinary analysis and illustrate the features of current developments in Eurasia, as well as their extensive historical, cultural, and social background. Along with the elaboration of political science, economics, sociology, and history, demonstrate the contributions of literature, philosophy, anthropology, psychology, geography, and other single and interdisciplinary disciplines.

We encourage in-depth discussions about academic experience, concepts, and development strategies among regional academic teams and institutions. Papers from all humanistic fields, including language and literature, are welcome.

Abstract / Paper Submission Procedure

Individuals are welcome to submit research papers to the conference. Please send the conference registration form and abstract of the paper to the Conference Organizing Committee (asianslavic2022@hotmail.com and asianslavic2022@163.com) by September 30, 2022.

Panel proposals are also welcome. The panel may consist of three speakers, one moderator and one discussant. It is recommended that the panel be composed of participants from more than two countries. For panel proposals, please provide the title and abstract of the group discussion, the full names of the participants, contact information, title and abstract of the paper (500-800 words). Please send all materials to the Conference Organizing Committee (asianslavic2022@hotmail.com and asianslavic2022@163.com) by September 30, 2022.

Postgraduate Workshop

There are special workshops for graduate students that aim to provide graduate students with opportunities for academic exchanges. A special guest will serve as a discussant at each workshop. Discussants are responsible for providing feedback on graduate students' research and facilitating group discussions.

By November 25, 2022, 14 days before the conference, all graduate students are expected to share their research papers with workshop discussants. This will give the discussants and participants enough time to prepare for the comments. The workshop is open to the public.

Please send relevant information, including contact information, the title and abstract of the paper to asianslavic2022@hotmail.com and asianslavic2022@163.com, by September 30, 2022.
